Conductor, when you receive a fare, Punch in the presence of the passenjare! A blue trip slip for a u eight-cent fare, A buff trip slip for a six-cent fare, A pink trip slip for a three cent fare. Punch in the presence of the passenjare:

CHORUS.

Panch, brothers! punch with care! Punch in the presence of the passenjare! I came across these jingling rhymes in newspaper a little while ago, and read them a couple of times. They took instant and entire possession of me. All through breakfast they went waltzing through my brain, and when at last I rolled up my napkin could not tell whether I had eaten anything or not. I had carefully laid out my day work the day before-a thrilling tragedy in the novel which I am writing. I went to my den to begin my deed of blood. I took up my pen, but all I could get it to say was Punch, in the presence of the pessenjare. I fought hard for an hour, but it was useless. My head kept humming "A blue trip slip for an eight-cent fare; a buff trip slip for a six-cent fare"; and so on and so on without peace or respite. The day's work was ruined. I could see that plainly enough. I gave up and drifted down town, and presently discovered that my feet were keeping time to that relentless jingle. When I could stand it no longer, I altered my step. But it did no good; those rhymes and went on harassing me just as before. I me any good. The time has long gone by returned home and suffered all the afternoon; suffered all through an unconscious and unrefreshing dinner; suffered, and cried, and jingled all through the evening; went to bed and rolled, tossed, and jingled right along the same as ever; got up at midnight frantic, and tried to read, but there was nothing visible on the whirling page except " Punch! punch in the presence of the passenjare." By sunrise I was out of my mind, and everybody marvelled and was distressed at the idiotic burden of my ravings: "Punch! ob, punch! punch in the presence of the passenjare!"

Two days later, on Saturday morning, arose, a tottering wreck, and went forth to fulfil an engagement with a valued friend, the Rev. Mr. —, to walk to the Talcott Tower, ten miles distant. He stared at me, but asked no questions. We started. Mr. talked, talked, talked, as is his wont. I said nothing; I heard nothing. At the end of a mile, Mr. - said: "Mark, are you sick? I never saw a man look so haggard, and worn, and absent-minded. Say something, do l"

I sighed wearily, and murmured: "A buff trip slip for a six-cent fare, punch in the presence of the passenjare!" Rev. Mr. - stood there, very grave, full of concern apparently, and looked long at me. Then he said: "Mark, there is something about this that I cannot understand. Those are about the same words you said before. There does not seem to be anything in them, and yet they nearly break my heart when you say them. Punch in the-how is it they go?"

I said them over. Then Mr. - said corrected. The next time and the next be got them right. Now a great burden seemed to tumble from my shoulders. That torturing jingle departed out of my brain, and a grateful sense of rest and peace descended upon me. I was light-hearted enough to sing; and I did sing for half an hour, straight along, as we went jogging homeward. Then my freed tongue found blessed speech | sent the following note, written in English, again, and the pent talk of many a weary hour began to gush and flow. It flowed on and on, joyously, jubilantly, until the fountain was empty and dry. As I wrung my friend's hand at parting, I said:

"Haven't we had a royal good time? But now I remember you haven't said a word for two hours. Come, come, out with some-didn't see him before he died! "'Yes!' I said, 'he is gone, he is gone, he is gone-ob, will this suffering never cease!

Thus murmuring faint and fainter, my friend sank into a peaceful trance, and forgot his sufferings in a blessed respite.

How did I finally save him from the asylum? I took him to a neighboring university and made him discharge the burden of his persecuting rhymes into the eager ears of the poor, unthinking students. How is it with them now? The result is too sad to tell. Why did I write this article? It was for a worthy, even a noble, purpose. It was to warn you, reader, if you should come across those merciless rhymes to avoid themavoid them as you would a pestilence.

SOCIAL RELATIONS IN FRANCE.-[Henri Taine in the Galaxy.]-"Here at Paris," writes Mme. d'Oberkirk, "I am no longer my own mistress. I scarcely have time to talk with my husband and to answer my letters. I do not know what women do that are accustomed to lead this life; they certainly have no families to look after nor children to educate?" At all events they act "Punch brothers, punch with care! Punch in the presence of the passenjare!"

My friend eyed me blankly, looked perplexed, then said:

"I do not think I get your drift, Mark. There does not seem to be any relevancy in what you have said, certainly nothing sad; and yet—maybe it was the way you said the whole so pathetic. What is"—I never heard anything that sounded so pathetic. What is"—But I heard no more. I was already far away with my pittless, heart-breaking "blue trip slip for a six-cent fare, publt trip slip for a six-cent fare, buft trip slip for a six-c Look at it! look at it! COLORING CHEESE. - The preference for colored cheese is one of the strangest commercial infatuations we are acquainted with. These Yorkshire people, shrewd as foxes in things generally, have a notion that plain cheese is not genuine for some reason or other, that it is not so rich as the other; whereas it is really the colored cheese that is not genuine-that is actually adulterated with annotto to produce the deep tint which they unwisely prefer. If these good people were to taste just a teasponful of annotto, such as is used to color cheese with, we venture to predict they would eschew colored cheese for the future. However, this fallacy is gradually being extinguished .- London Agricultural Gazette.

A Boston GIRL'S SMARTNESS.—The Boston Ti anscript reports that a venerable talker of twaddle, a society man who has outlived his usefulness, but who still hovers around at receptions and parties, and indulges in small talk at-which no one laughs but himself, sailed up to a couple engaged in conversation in a cozy corner the other evening, and in his most winning tone said : "Judging from the color of her cheeks I should say you had been saying some very complimentary things to Miss — .. my boy." "I never deal in compliments," said the "boy," rather gruffly. "Don't you believe it," broke in the fair Miss --; "he has paid me a greater compliment than you ever paid a lady in all your life. He has been talking to me as though I knew something."

DESIRABLE UNIMPROVED SPRINGS
Offer for sale privately a bold, free-flowing SPRING which by qualitative analysis proves to be similar to the Healing Springs of Virginia. The spring has been known to consist of medical virtue, curing diseases of inflammatory nature, for many years, but had not been until recently analyzed. There is connected with this spring about TEN ACRES OF LAND, beautifully located, about one hundred yards distant from Beil's Valley depot, on the Chesapeake and Ohio railroad, Rockbridge county,
Va., distant one hundred and fifty miles from Richmond, Va., twelve miles from Rockbridge and Jordan Alum Springs, and sixty miles from the celebrated White Sulphur Springs, West Virginia.
Owing to the location, being immediately on the Chesapeake and Chio railroad, the great thoroughfare from the ocean to the great West, situated in the most beautiful region in the State, this property can be made in a few years second to none other in the State of Virginia.

The old settlers of the county in which the springs are located can abundantly testify to the curative qualities of this water. Upon the same land is also a bold-flowing spring of freestone water.

The whole property has been recently enclosed with a fine grove of timber as to admit of any kind of improvement that may be desired.

The supply of water is abundant, being derived from a large, bold spring. The water is beautifully bright and chrystalline, and the ever-bursting bulbles of gas impart to it a peculiar, sparkling appearance.
